

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus to determine performance of a subscriber loop includes using a database containing information pertaining to physical characteristics of a subscriber loop (or group of subscriber loops). Based on the information, a data communications speed of the subscriber loop is estimated. An actual data communications speed of the subscriber loop is determined and compared to the estimated data communications speed. The information in the database is updated based on the comparison.

5

10
15
20
25
30
35
40
45
50
55
60
65
70
75
80
85
90
95
100